CUBAN JUNTA STRUGGLES AS U.S. WARSHIPS GATHER

NO BRITISH DICTATORSHIP SAYS LABOR

Move Would Be Fought With
All Means, Says Trades
Union Congress

New Efforts Of Fascists Scored

By George Hambleton
Canadian Press Staff Writer
Brighton, Eng., Sept. 7.—
The British Trades Union
Congress will have nothing to do with dictatorships.
A resolution adopted today declares that in the event of any attempt to supersede democratic institutions the Labor movement will take "all possible steps, including formation of plans for industrial action, to combat this menace."

John Bromley, member of the general council who submitted the motion, urged united action against the forces which seek to usurp democracy.

Walter Citrine, member of the congress, declared dictatorship did not come from the clouds. It existed in certain parts of Europe prior to the Great War. It was new in Germany, but had already come in various forms in Italy, Finland, Yugoslavia and Russia. There was a semi-dictatorship in Austria, he said.

SPECTACLE IN GERMANY

"Mr. Citrine continued, 'that 63 per cent of the working class of Germany should have voted to put their backs under the heel of a dictatorship.
I can tell you from first-hand knowledge adequate means of resistance were prepared. The International Federation of Trades Unions and the International Transport Federation made plans for a general strike, but they had to consider 6,500,000 unemployed in Germany. It might have brought about civil war."

The secretary declared Fascism was busy in Britain. In London, he said, there were hundreds of Fascist black shirt supporters, armed with sticks, speaking outside workshops and hoping to come in conflict with trades union officials.

NO LABOR DICTATORSHIP

Mr. Citrine was equally opposed to a dictatorship by labor. "It has been thought by some of our people," he said pointedly, "you can have a dictatorship provided it is a dictatorship of your own friends. There is no halfway house. Every time you give way to any form of dictatorship you wreck your own movement."

TRAIL IS SCENTED

Calgary, Sept. 7 (Canadian Press).—
There is plenty of scent for police on the trail of the burglar who stole bottles of nearly every kind of perfume from a drugstore here yesterday evening, besides $80. To-day, however, the powerful scent had not led to an arrest.

G. G. McGeer, K.C. and Mrs. Paul

Mr. McGeer's name is linked with that of the Attorney-Generalship, but

The date for the Vancouver Centre nomination will be set within a few two conventions will bring the total of Liberal candidates to forty-five.

Norman Whitaker, the Spanish
Liberals candidate, will speak at Brod-

There will be four Talmie Conserva-

sibly an independent slate of Conserva-

backed by the Victoria Conservative Association.

The central executive of the Victoria
Conservative Association yesterday ev-

Told of the decision Premier Talmie

Ottawa, Sept. 7.—A party of fifteen men and women, representing 300 delegates to the National Conference of the Unemployed, in session here today, presented a list of "demanded" reforms before the Dominion government and demanded "an immediate their representations would be re-

"On the reply we get from this gov-of Toronto, one of the spokesmen.

Immediately after the audience the delegation returned to their associates,

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y., Sept. 6.—

Watkins Glen has lost its great attraction with the departure of its celebrated deer from the rocky ledge to which it was confined for ten days.
Scorning the temporary and camouflaged bridge which had been thrown across the chasm for its exit, the deer, under the gentle urging of two park employees, yesterday made its way cautiously down the precipitous bank into the stream that flows through the glen, crossed to the opposite side, jumped to a small ledge and then ambled to the top of the bank on the south side of the ravine. It then trotted by one of the four camps near the entrance to the reservation, and headed for the nearby woods, where it disappeared.

The picture above was taken while the deer was still on the ledge, from which his mate fell to her death in the ravine, 200 feet below, eleven days ago, when a landslide trapped the latter.

It is estimated that during the ten days 150,000 persons visited the scene in autos and saw the deer. Over the Labor Day week-end alone 100,000 went to the spot.

SAYS JOHNSON VIOLATES NRA

Associated Press
Newark, N.J., Sept. 7.—Eric Ross, Labor union official, charges violations of the NRA at the Lea Fabrics Inc. factory, of which Brig.-Gen. Hugh S.
Johnson, NRA administrator, is president. He may change his election to be tried by a county court judge or he may adhere to his election of trial
by jury. In the latter eventuality, the case would come up at the regular sessions opening in Ottawa October 9, before Mr. Justice Jeffrey of the Supreme Court of Ontario, presiding.

When the adjourned hearing comes up in police court next week, Sollo-way on formal commitment, will make application for bail before a county judge.

CROP REPORT

in the prairie provinces and threshing

SEEK LAW TEST ON WAGE TAX

Trades and Labor Council
Want One Per Cent Levy
Contested on Mainland
In view of the stand taken by the majority of the legal fraternity of British Columbia to the effect that the Jones one per cent wage tax is ultra vires, the Vancouver and District Trades and Labor Council has been requested by the local labor council to put the tax to a court test.

A resolution making this request was unanimously passed at a meeting held yesterday evening when V. R. Midgley pointed out that if the legal minds took this attitude on the levy there should be no delay in testing its validity.

Various delegates spoke to the motion all urging that immediate action be taken in order that the people might be relieved of the levy as they had been of the meal tax.
It was agreed that the cost of fighting the tax should be shared by the trades and labor bodies of British Columbia.

CONSERVATIVE TICKET FAILS

Unionist Step in in Victoria
When Party Fails to Find Candidates

Hon. Joshua Hinchliffe Scheduled to Run at Head of Tolmie Ticket

Frank admission of the failure of the Victoria Conservative Association to select four candidates who could run in harmony on a Victoria ticket in the provincial election contest was made by officials of the association this morning following a meeting of the central executive association yesterday evening.

Following the meeting it was announced by Premier Talmie that a slate of four unionists would be put forward.

Had the Conservatives been able to select four men to run it is probable there would have been no opposition from the Tolmie Unionists.

"The report is absolutely correct," F.
A. Willis, president of the Victoria Conservative Association, said this morning when questioned as to its accuracy.
The report states that as a result of the failure to make a choice of candidates the association would take no part in the provincial fray, no candidate would have the backing of the association, and its members would be free to vote as they chose. The association will remain intact to take part in federal politics.

HINCHLIFFE AT HEAD

Following the decision discussion was rife to-day as to the prospective Unionist ticket. It was generally accepted that Hon. Joshua Hinchliffe, Minister of Education and Minister of Lands, and reported to be judge, councillor and friend of Premier Talmie, would be the Victoria ticket in support of his leader. Sometime ago Hinchliffe left no doubt as to where he stands when he made his announcement that he would "lead the pack" if he deserted his chief for the purpose of securing a nomination.

SOLLOWAY IS LISTED FOR TRIAL

Ottawa Magistrate Rules Ex-stock Broker Must Go Before Higher Court

Canadian Press
Ottawa, Sept. 7.—W. Solloway, Montreal, former stock broker, was committed to stand trial before a higher court to-day by Magistrate Glenn E. Strike on a charge of theft and conspiracy to defraud. Solloway is charged with having stolen 100 shares of Noranda mining stock lodged with him as collateral. The preliminary hearing in police court was as a result of a charge lodged by D. B. Rochester, well-known mining figure.

Magistrate Strike said he believed a prime facie case had been made out and Solloway should stand trial in a higher court. The magistrate adjourned the case until Friday, September 15, when Solloway will be formally committed for trial. In the meantime, Solloway is at liberty.

PLEADS NOT GUILTY

In police court, Solloway entered a plea of not guilty and elected for trial by jury. He may change his election to be tried by a county court judge or
he may adhere to his election of trial
by jury. In the latter eventuality, the case would come up at the regular
sessions opening in Ottawa October 9,

Ex-Minister's Death Mourned

Flood of Messages Pays Tribute to Career of Viscount Grey

As British Foreign Secretary
He strove to Avert Great War

Canadian Press and Associated Press London, Sept. 7.—Tributes to the life and achievements of Viscount Grey of Fallodon poured in to-day from all quarters—his former political colleagues, statesmen and various other persons prominent in all walks of life—when news of the death of the former Secretary for Foreign Affairs spread.

One of the most striking came from the Marquis of Reading, Lord Chief Justice at the outbreak of the Great War. His message read:

"His memory will always be treasured for his efforts to avoid a long-threatened European War, and for the important part he played in reaching the vital decision in August, 1914, as well as for his consistent and successful efforts and endeavors to steer clear of entanglements with America before she entered the war."

LOYD GEORGE GRIEVES

Bangor, Wales, Sept. 7.—Rt. Hon.
David Lloyd George, whose memoirs, published by coincidence on the eve of Viscount Grey's death, contained a sharp attack on the former Secretary for Foreign Affairs in connection with the outbreak of the Great War, was obviously distressed to-day when informed of the passing of his one-time colleague.

With a voice full of emotion the former Prime Minister and Secretary of War said:
"It is sad to be told of the death of an old colleague. We had our disagreements in opinion and he and I gave expression to them. That is inevitable in politics, especially in the course of a long life. But I have nothing now but grief at the death of one with whom I worked so many years in complete harmony."

Mr. Lloyd George in the first volume of his war memoirs said millions killed in the Great War need not have met

AARON SAPIRO IS IN CUSTODY

Lawyer Known in B.C. Held
For Extradition to Chicago
For Trial

New York, Sept. 7.—Aaron Sapiro,
New York lawyer, well known in western Canada, arrested here last July as a fugitive from justice in Chicago, where he was indicted with Al Capone and twenty-three others for conspiracy, surrendered at the Tombs prison to-day.

Governor Herbert H. Lehman yesterday granted the Illinois application for the lawyer's extradition.
Sapiro, who helped organize farm co-operatives on the Canadian prairies and tried unsuccessfully to form a fruitful cooperative in the Okanagan district of British Columbia, had been at liberty on $1,000 bail pending hearing on the fugitive charge September 11.

DAVID SIEGEL, counsel for Sapiro, said he planned to go immediately before Supreme Court Justice Julius Miller and apply for a writ of habeas corpus for his client.

Assistant District Attorney Irving Toll said he would ask the justice for an adjournment of the proceedings until to-morrow as he expected Chicago authorities to be here by that time to claim their prisoner.

The application from Illinois which the Governor granted yesterday was the second made in a few weeks and was based on a second indictment against Sapiro. The Governor refused to extradite on the first after the lawyer had proved he was not in Chicago on the date alleged.

Justice Miller held a brief hearing on Siegel's application for a writ of habeas corpus and adjourned the case until to-morrow.

People of Island Look For Intervention By Big Power As Tension Grows

Famous Landmark Disappearing

Demolition of the old Christ Church Cathedral is now slowly proceeding and within a few months this famous church building will have disappeared. The adornments on the old structure have been removed, as the historic new cathedral rose up behind it and now the shell of the building is being removed. This famous structure, visible for miles at sea from Victoria, was built more than seventy years ago and was a centre of community worship for more than half a century. As tearing down of the old building goes ahead the congregation is taking another step forward in the construction of the new. A building permit was taken out at the City Hall to-day for work on the northwest tower of the new cathedral.
Twenty-three feet will be added to the tower this year, putting it to a height of forty-seven feet. The contract price is set out as $7,500. Parfitt Brothers will do the work.

Three Operations For Appendicitis Performed At Sea

Dr. Mason of Ss. Monowai and Volunteer Nurses Had Busy Voyage From South

U.S. DOLLAR IN LONDON
London, Sept. 7 (Associated Press).—
The United States dollar closed here today at $4.55 3/4 to the pound sterling, slightly off from yesterday's final rate of $4.55 1/4. The French franc finished at 80.53, against yesterday's close of 80.65.

Three lives were saved at sea by the ship's doctor and his staff of willing assistants and volunteers, aboard the Ss. Monowai, which reached Victoria this morning from Australia and Honolulu. When the Monowai docked to-day, the hospital was full, but the patients were recovering and will be removed to shore-side hospital in Vancouver this evening.

E. H. Heather of Auckland, chief wireless operator aboard the liner, was the first case for Dr. J. E. Mason, ship's doctor, a former resident of Edmonton.
The case was quickly diagnosed as appendicitis, and the doctor ordered an immediate operation. That was August 28. The seas were choppy that day, so Capt. Heather ordered the speed of the liner cut to about ten knots.

Man, Too Drunk To Vote, Held Deciding Ballot In Tie Election In B.C. In '62

"Newspapers have referred to the forthcoming B.C. general election as the most extraordinary in the history of British Columbia, but if they turn back the pages of British Columbia history they will find there was one that will be hard to beat," writes a political observer who has been browsing through the archives at the Parliament Buildings.

His contribution, sent to Political Paragraphs, is too long to publish in that column. It goes back seventy years, when the Legislature boasted only twenty members, when many of them had to leave their homes in the fall of the year in order to attend the spring session in Victoria, and when their sessional indemnity was eighty pounds sterling yearly ($400), together with an allowance of ten cents a mile travelling expenses.

In an election in those days the political fate of British Columbia rested in the hands of a town drunkard and he did not decide it.

In 1862, wandering Indians were responsible for finding rich alluvial gold diggings at Stodhorpe, or Wildhorse Creek, now Fort Steele, in the East Kootenay district, three miles north of the present town of Cranbrook.
The nearest point to the strike at that time was Walla Walla, Washington, four hundred miles away.

Machine Guns Set Up By Soldiers in Parks as Rumors Sweep Havana; One Report Says Junta Will Be Asked to Surrender Power

U.S. Sends Planes As Well As Ships

Havana, Sept. 7.—Soldiers set up machine guns in uptown parks this afternoon as Havana was stirred by many confusing rumors, including an insistent report that the United States would ask the two-day-old radical government to surrender power.

A widely circulated rumor was that Washington would ask Carlos Manuel de Cespedes, deposed from the provincial presidency by the Radical coup d'etat last Tuesday, to be placed at the head of the government again with a new "cabinet of concentration." Such a cabinet would include representatives of all revolutionary groups.

A heavy guard was placed around the Presidential Palace, where the Commission of Five, new rulers of Cuba, was in session.

Communist meetings in celebration of International Youth Day were scheduled throughout Havana. The government announced no street demonstrations would be permitted.
Machine guns were mounted in Central Fraternity and other parts.
Soldiers said they had orders to fire
if the slightest disturbance occurred.
The widespread belief Ambassador Sumner Welles had insisted on return power of Dr. de Cespedes was based in part on the news thirty United States ships of war were being concentrated in Cuba waters.

JOBLESS EX-SERVICE MEN PROTEST

Statements Canada Against Shorter Hours and High Wages Arouse Labor Men

Members of the Trades and Labor Council, in session yesterday evening, strongly criticised the stand taken by Premier Bennett at Montreal recently, when, they stated, he announced that Canada was not in favor of a plan similar to the NRA in the United States, and did not favor the adoption of shorter working hours and higher wages at this time.

Premier Should Not Make Such Assertions For People, Speakers Declare

The tradesmen were referring to the speech made by the Prime Minister at the Montreal Board of Trade meeting on September 1, when he said the adoption of the NRA principles at this time would not be favorable towards Canada's export trade.

"It may be all right for Premier Bennett to speak like that for his government of fifteen or twenty men, but certainly he has no license to make such a statement for all Canadians," declared one delegate.

The council unanimously endorsed a resolution taking exception to the Premier's remarks, and passed it on to other delegates for support.

Some delegates pointed out that such statements by the prime minister appeared to indicate a tendency on his behalf to lower living conditions in the Dominion rather than try and raise them and contribute something towards the return of prosperity.

The Prime Minister may have been within his rights in declaring that license to declare the Dominion against shorter working hours and wage increases.

LABOR CHIEF GAINS PRESTIGE

John L. Lewis Expected to Be Most Powerful Figure in A.F. of L.

Consumers' Advisory Board's Economist Interested in How People Live

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, Sept. 7.—President Roosevelt telephoned General Johnson from Hyde Park one night and told him to get the coal operators and miners into conference.

That was the turning point toward an epochal NRA agreement which includes complete recognition by operators of the United Mine Workers.

Labor representatives here had received private assurance that Roosevelt regarded national union recognition as an essential in rehabilitation of the coal industry, torn for decades by labor and competitive warfare.

When non-union operators went behind closed doors with President John Lewis and other U. M. W. officials the result was a foregone conclusion.

Non-union operators, under pressure above from the administration and below from a strong union with 300,000 new members, couldn't refuse.

They faced a certain strike if they didn't play ball and probably would have had the police powers of the government as well as public opinion against them. And they probably would have lost the strike.

LEWIS GAINS PRESTIGE
The recognition victory enormously enhanced the prestige of Lewis. He will soon become the most powerful figure in the A. F. of L., and you can look for a realignment of control there, if not of titular leadership.

President—Sidney Hillman of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers is expected to apply for membership in the A. F. of L. for his union soon.

Thereafter, Hillman—often called "labor's statesman"—Lewis and Major George L. Berry of the pressmen's union may be expected to form the nucleus of an aggressive bloc in the federation councils which would be likely to end the reign of the conservative "old guard" of the type of Matthew Wolf.

The three are members of the Labor Advisory Board. Hillman and Lewis have been the outstanding vigorous labor organizers under the recovery act. They came to respect each other greatly. Lewis has helped Hillman in strikes which occurred when the latter organized miners' daughters in coal section shirt factories.

"NOSING" A TREE
Citizens' Conservation Camp boys are learning forestry rapidly.

In a Maryland camp the other day one was instructed to go out and "nose" a tree recently felled.

An hour later his boss found him sniffing the trunk vigorously, complaining that it "smells like—"

"(Nosing) if you don't know, means trimming off a tree's limbs."

ECONOMIC THEORIES
Dexter M. Keezer, brilliant economist chosen to succeed Professor William F. Ogburn as director of NRA's Consumers' Advisory Board, is only thirty-eight. He has an insatiable curiosity about all sorts of conditions of people. He spends many hours learning first-hand the personal economic problems of filling station attendants, Pullman porters, clerks, farmers and folks like that. How they live and how they're able to live are questions which fascinate him.

Keezer, who has been a newspaperman and taught economics at Cornell, University of Colorado, University of North Carolina and Dartmouth, believes no one can say this or that economic theory is correct; that you can only teach college students how to gather and relate information. Conclusions are impossible, he holds, because the world changes so rapidly that one cannot know the absolute value of economic factors.

RULES FOR BROKERS DECLARED SUCCESS

Canadian Press
Toronto, Sept. 7.—George A. Drew, Ontario securities commissioner, yesterday evening denied assertions of J. C. McRuer, of Toronto, at yesterday's session of the Liberal Summer Conference in Port Hope, Ont., that lack of supervision and inspection of brokers' offices rendered it impossible to know if any should be prosecuted for irregular practices.

In a statement, Mr. Drew said the Ontario Securities Act, which he administers, "provides for rigid, periodic and surprise audits of the books of every member of the stock exchanges in the province." Under the audits, he added, "it is practically impossible for any brokerage firm dealing on one of the exchanges to adopt practices which resulted in the prosecutions" in 1929 of brokers accused of "bucketing."

He said "there have been many prosecutions and many convictions. Reputable brokers have shown the utmost willingness to co-operate in stamping out practices that do so much to bring the business into disrepute, and there can be no question on whatever the brokerage business generally throughout the province is on a very much sounder basis than it was in 1929."

TOWEL ALLOWANCE REDUCED

New York, Sept. 7 (Canadian Press).—A wave of economy has hit the municipal court here and it looks as though the justices will have dirty hands. The budget director has ruled they can have only one clean towel every two weeks, instead of one a week.

ELK EXECUTED

Bend, Ore., Sept. 7 (Associated Press).—Execution of a huge bull elk because of his dislike for children and fondness for potatoes was announced by the State Game Commission. The elk chased children and tore down farm fences to steal potatoes, a report said.

WILL TEACH AT "EXILES" UNIVERSITY

Edmonton, Sept. 7 (Canadian Press).—Inquiry into conditions in Alberta relief camps by a specially appointed committee has been urged on the Alberta government by a delegation from the Alberta Federation of Labor. Labor representation on the proposed committee also was asked for by the delegation, which complained of low wages paid men in the camps, overcrowding and lack of clothing.

LACK OF INTEREST SEEN

Edmonton, Sept. 7 (Canadian Press).—Lack of interest on the public's part in redistribution of Alberta constituencies was revealed when the special committee dealing with the question opened its hearings here yesterday. Only one brief was presented. There are sixty-three constituencies, electing members to the Alberta Legislature at present and the committee was appointed last session to study the question of reducing this number.

PLAGIARISM SUIT IS FAILURE

Associated Press
Los Angeles, Sept. 7.—Harold Lloyd, film comedian, was cleared yesterday of a charge of plagiarism brought against him by Mrs. Sadie Witwer, widow of H. C. Witwer, short story writer, who asserted he had violated the federal copyright act in his picture "The Freshman."

The suit was tried here two years ago, the federal district court ruling Lloyd was "unintentionally guilty" of violating the Copyright Act. Lloyd appealed and the circuit court held there was no basis for charges the comedian had plagiarized Witwer's story, "Emancipation of Rodney." Mrs. Witwer had asked for an accounting of profits from the picture and unnamed damages.

BIG BOARD FOR C.N.R. IS URGED

Hon. T. A. Crerar Suggests From 60 to 90 "Trustee-shareholders"

Canadian Press

Port Hope, Ont., Sept. 7.—The proposal a board of "trustee-shareholders," comprised of between sixty and ninety members, representative of every phase of Canadian activity, be appointed to handle the affairs of the Canadian National Railways, was advanced by Hon. T. A. Crerar, former Minister of Railways, at the Liberal Summer Conference here yesterday.

The board, members of which would be drawn from every province, would be preferable to the contemplated body of trustees envisaged in the Duff railway report, Mr. Crerar thought.

The proposal was made at a round-table conference, and the former minister suggested the railways should take their labor disputes to arbitration or conciliation, invoking the provisions of the Industrial Disputes Act. The reasons for the findings, which, however, would not be binding, would then be tabled in the House of Commons.

PROBLEMS OF VOTING
O. M. Egan, K.C., former Chief Electoral Officer of Canada, did not think compulsory voting in federal elections possible under the present provisions of the Canadian electoral law.

A revised law making it compulsory for electors to register continuously at the post offices in their respective districts was essential, the former Chief Electoral Officer declared.

NEGROES HUNTED IN ALABAMA

Associated Press
Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 7.—Hunt for two negroes accused of attacking a society girl after beating and robbing her, spread over central Alabama today as word of arrest of a negro in another attack came from Prattville, sixteen miles from Montgomery.

Victims of the Montgomery crime were surprised by the negroes as they sat in a parked automobile. Names were withheld.

The man was robbed of $20 and beaten. The negroes then took the girl to a nearby field and attacked her, the sheriff said. The other attack, also on a white woman, was made in Autauga County.

REVISED REPORT ON GOLD ISSUED

Ottawa, Sept. 7.—Three thousand copies of a revised edition of "Gold Occurrences in Canada" have just been issued by the Geological Survey, Department of Mines, Ottawa, to meet a strong and continuous demand for the earlier edition of the report published last year. The report is designed to afford prospectors the advantages of geological guidance in the search for new sources of gold, and to convey to those interested in gold production a knowledge of the industry, its present situation, and the opportunities of the gold industry in Canada.

There are two parts to the report, the first being descriptive of lode gold deposits in the various provinces, special emphasis being placed on the correlation of their geological features with the general geology of the region. In addition, there is an explanation of geological terms and phrases, and a short discussion on the geological provinces of Canada.

The second part has been prepared with a view to rendering assistance to those engaged in placer operations, more particularly those who have taken to placer mining as a consequence of adverse economic conditions. Descriptions are given as to the mode of occurrences and kinds of placers, hand mining methods, and of the various placer deposits of Canada.

The report is complementary to "Gold in Canada" issued recently by the department, and dealing with other aspects of the gold industry. Copies of "Gold Occurrences in Canada" may be obtained from the director, geological survey, Department of Mines, Ottawa, or from the British Columbia office of the survey, 511 Winch Building, Vancouver.

EARTH SHOCKS ARE RECORDED

Washington, Sept. 7.—An earthquake of over an hour's duration, starting at 5:27 p.m. yesterday, was reported to-day by the seismological laboratory of Georgetown University.

The shocks registered the maximum force at 5:36 and ended at 6:30 p.m. Location of the disturbance was given as 5,000 miles from Washington in a westerly direction.

NEW TRADE COMMISSIONERS

Canberra, Australia, Sept. 7 (Canadian Press Cable).—Trade commissioners will be appointed to act in vital centres in the Far East and New Zealand, Prime Minister J. A. Lyons announced to-day. Necessary legislation will be introduced in October. THEIR ROWBOAT BECAME A SHIP OF STATE

The spectacle of two statesmen holding a momentous conference in a rowboat was afforded hundreds of bathers at Riccione Beach, Italy, when Chancellor Engelbert Dollfus of Austria reported out to where Premier Mussolini was swimming to discuss, it is reported, a central European pact. This was the scene as the little Chancellor (holding coat and hat) and Il Duce (in bathing suit) returned to the beach.

Over 20,000 new policyholders every year

For many years more than 20,000 men and women have joined the Canada Life's great family of policyholders annually. Group insurance policies would greatly increase this total.

Each individual in this large number has received personal service from a Canada Life representative. This requires a widespread organization and a great variety of services and plans.

Thousands of individual premiums aggregate many millions of dollars annually—money that is to grow and be returned, sooner or later, to beneficiaries or to policyholders themselves.

During the past three years the Canada Life paid out over $77,000,000 in this way. In the same period it added over $43,000,000 to its assets to provide for future liabilities to policyholders.

Time can not obscure the memory of Lord Grey of Fallodon, not only because, as British Secretary for Foreign Affairs, he played a conspicuous part in the tragic drama which reached its climax in the outbreak of the world war, or because of his unimpeachable record as a statesman for a considerable period before that upheaval, but also because of the singularly fine personal qualities which were manifest throughout his whole career. A great gentleman in every sense of the term, profoundly appreciative of his responsibilities as a public man, indifferent to personal advancement and to popular applause, he occupied a unique position in the political life of Great Britain as well as in the field of international affairs.

In the extraordinarily trying times which preceded the war he strove indefatigably for peace. He sought to bring the leaders of the continental powers together to confer over their differences; he offered mediation and arbitration. At one time he came within an ace of getting Russia and Austria on speaking terms, but Germany's declaration of war ruined his prospects. He lacked the machinery which now exists for insuring international discussion. Beyond all that he was trying to combat an international complex which had existed for centuries, to stay the inevitable sequel of the creation of rival groups armed to the teeth and convinced that sooner or later they would have to go to war. Europe was a powder magazine with a short fuse which any obscure little country had the power to ignite. Even if Lord Grey had been able to delay the explosion it would have occurred later, for such a situation could have no other outcome.

Critics of Lord Grey's attitude have charged him with undue caution, with too much diplomatic punctilio in his handling of the emergency. They claim he should have thrown aside the customary polite usages of diplomacy and bluntly informed Germany that Great Britain would certainly be a factor in the war if she precipitated it. They recall the moderating effect upon German policy exercised by Mr. Lloyd George's speech at Manchester several years before. But Lord Grey had no authority to commit his country to a part in a European war before it took place; he knew that the British people were averse from participating in a struggle which did not directly involve their own vital interests. And he was above bluffing. He could not go any farther than the government of which he was a member was prepared to go, and that government in turn was influenced by the result of its private consultations with the two Houses of Parliament.

One of the most revealing insights into the character and activities of Lord Grey was given by the late Walter Hines Page, United States Ambassador to Great Britain, in the volumes of his letters which were published a few years ago. Between the two a close intimacy, arising from high mutual regard and confidence, developed, with the result that many difficult issues affecting the position of neutrals were settled without acrimony. The strain of his efforts took a heavy toll in health from the British Foreign Minister and when he left his office in 1916 he was a physical wreck, with an impairment of eyesight which eventually left him almost blind. He rendered his country unexampled service and will take his place in the pantheon of its history among the great figures of his race.

LORD ROTHERMERE, ECONOMIST

Lord Rothermere says Canada should cut down her taxation but preserve her tariff. Lord Rothermere, like his Harmsworth brothers, is an Irishman, and this priceless observation may have been merely a little Celtic joke. Otherwise its ambiguity would be hard to explain. Our customs tariff, of course, in itself is a form of taxation, as the Canadian people know to their cost. So far its only effect in this country has been to strangle our outside trade until it has shrunk from $2,600,000,000 to around $860,000,000 a year. It also has reduced the national revenue, since the less imports we have the less customs duty we collect. Consequently the federal government must increase its domestic taxation—income tax, sales tax, stamp tax, postage tax and what not. Rothermere's idea evidently is that as long as a corporal's guard benefits from the customs tariff at the expense of the great mass of our population everything is lovely. That idea is worthless. We know it because we have been suffering from it for some years.

APPOINTMENTS TO THE BENCH

Local interest in the appointments to the bench of the province which were announced yesterday will centre chiefly in the elevation of Mr. Harold B. Robertson, K.C., to the Supreme Court in succession to Hon. F. B. Gregory. Until the demands of an expanding practice required Mr. Robertson to reside on the Mainland virtually the whole of his professional career was spent in this city where he is widely known and universally esteemed. He has one of the best legal minds in the province, he is uniformly fair and courteous, and these qualities, combined with his fine sense of responsibility, should insure for him a creditable record in the high office to which he has been appointed.

Mr. W. J. McQuarrie, K.C., who has been appointed to the vacancy on the Court of Appeal caused by the resignation of Hon. W. A. Gallihier, is a New Westminster man, who, unlike Mr. Robertson, has been prominent in political life on the Mainland, having represented his district at Ottawa, first as a supporter of the union government in 1917 and for several terms subsequently as a follower of Mr. Meighen.

WHAT DOES MR. BENNETT MEAN?

Newspapers across the country are wondering what Premier Bennett meant a week ago on his arrival in Montreal when he asserted Canadians in the not distant future might be called upon to face things which would test the "very fabric of our national being"; also, that "we must not flinch from imposing upon ourselves the highest standards of self-discipline in fulfilment of our duty to our country, to ourselves and to one another."

The Conservative Winnipeg Tribune says this note in his speech shocked the nation and asks whether Mr. Bennett is preparing a new menu of tax terror for the Canadian people. If the utterance means what it seems to mean that Mr. Bennett is preparing to call on the Canadian people to make further heavy sacrifices by way of increased taxation, the newspaper declares he should be told promptly and emphatically that we have had that course and are looking for something fresh on the menu.

"If increasing taxes is all Mr. Bennett has to suggest as light and leadership for Canada, it will not do," says The Tribune. "We have had that course, and what the people are looking for to-day is not further sacrifice but some lessening of the heavy load they are now carrying. They want leadership in fighting their way out of present difficulties, not the kind that only imposes more handicaps upon their efforts."

Apologists point out that perhaps Mr. Bennett, fresh from England, still has his thinking colored by conditions over there, where the budget has been balanced. But the fact is that although some new and heavier taxes were imposed in Britain, the big part of budget balancing was effected by economy in public service and cutting the cost of government, not by additional taxes.

Now that he has returned, Mr. Bennett possibly needs to be reminded of the situation in Canada, that federal, provincial and municipal authorities have already piled on an almost overwhelming burden, which has curbed purchasing power and industrial enterprise. Many critics have expressed the opinion that while every avenue of increased taxation has been explored in this country, there has never been on the part of the Dominion a serious and determined effort toward reducing the cost of government.

It is all very well, as The Tribune says, for Mr. Bennett from the comfortable security of Parliament Hill and the luxury of his spacious Chateau Laurier apartments to talk freely about self-discipline. Canadians on the firing-line have been forced to practice self-discipline for three years. It is too much like "an officer at G.H.Q. advising men in the mud and filth of the trenches to steel themselves to self-discipline because further hardships were coming."

MYSTERY IN REAL LIFE

An unemployed engineer in a middle western city recently gave the police a perplexing puzzle by being found, lifeless, alongside a lonely road with a series of stab wounds in his back and a dose of poison in his stomach.

It looked like murder, at first; but the police finally concluded that the man had killed himself and had arranged things to look like murder because of some final impish whim. This theory, the officers said, was strengthened by the fact that a detective story was found beside the man's body.

But a real detective story fan might easily make just the opposite deduction from this fact. There is nothing a mystery addict hates so much as the novel which presents a puzzling homicide and then, in the last chapter discloses, that it was really a suicide. If the man in this case was actually fond of that kind of literature, could he be expected to ape a plot which, if he found it in a book, would fill him with a consuming rage?

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

THE IMPORTANCE OF COLONIZATION
 The La Presse, Montreal

Colonization is, for the Canadian people, and most particularly for the group of French descent, the work of premier importance, to the successful achievement of which we should all give our strenuous assistance. The danger lies in believing that it is only a measure for the defeat of unemployment and the relief of the distress from which so many families are at present suffering. Even when prosperity returns we must continue colonizing vigorously, according to a well prepared plan. It must remain in the forefront of our governmental programmes, whether municipal or otherwise.

SENATOR ROBERTSON
 The Ottawa Journal

Oldeon Decker Robertson was a labor leader of the school of Samuel Gompers. Taking his politics from those who had revolted from the ultra-radicalism of the Knights of Labor, he pinned his faith all through life to the creed of moderate trades unionism, became one of its pillars on the North American Continent. He never thought or supported labor as a class movement. Intensely patriotic and broad in his ideas and sympathies, the betterment of the conditions of labor meant to him the gain of all society, and it was from this standpoint that he fought dogmatically but always sanely for his cause.

Like all moderate reformers, he was misunderstood. To the left of his own side he was a reactionary, blocking the path to the Socialist's Utopia, while to the reactionary he was a flaming radical seeking to undermine some of our most cherished institutions. The one picture was as grotesque as the other.

His death, while still a comparatively young man, may be attributed to overwork. The full brunt of the depression fell upon him, as Minister of Labor, charged with the crushing burden of administering the details of the government's relief policies; and the responsibility took heavy toll. He was not compounded of the temperament which takes things lightly.

The passing of such a man, particularly in times like these, is a national loss, for it means that a steady hand has been taken from the throttle of a great movement at a time when steady hands and cool heads in that movement are more than ever necessary. The only consolation—and it is always so at the close of any useful life—is that the example and career of Senator Robertson can not but help his successors toward a greater wisdom in the years and problems before them.

FOOL IDEA

I SEE BY THE papers," said the Ordinary Citizen to Premier Bennett, "that you opposed to any NRA for Canada."

"Naturally," said Premier Bennett, "only a fool would propose such a thing. As I stated clearly in my recent Montreal speech, we cannot have short hours and high wages in this country."

"Why?" asked the Ordinary Citizen meekly.

"Only an ass would ask such a question," said Premier Bennett. "We are an exporting nation. How can we hold our great foreign trade unless we keep our cost of production as low as possible? We must trade."

"Then," said the Ordinary Citizen, "if we must trade, why not trade? Isn't it true that tariffs stop trade?"

"Exactly," said Mr. Bennett. "Well," said the Ordinary Citizen, "if we cannot have high wages and short hours because we must trade, why do we stop trade with our tariffs?"

"Like that," said Mr. Bennett. "We must have tariffs to protect our own industries and enable them to pay dividends."

"Then," said the Ordinary Citizen, "the idea is to protect the shareholders by government regulation and through the elimination of competition?"

"You seem to grasp it, strangely enough," said Mr. Bennett. "But the people on salaries and wages—they must be exposed to competition from anywhere and given no protection whatever."

"That," said Mr. Bennett, "is because you don't understand economics. When prices go up, producers will get more for their products and will be much better off."

"Then," said the Ordinary Citizen, "I am not a producer. I have no commodity to sell."

"If I did produce a commodity," said the Ordinary Citizen, "I should only be increasing the surplus and aggravating the situation; whereas if I had wages to purchase commodities I might help to reduce it. But since you will allow me higher wages nor shorter hours, I need to be much help at a time like this, do I?"

"No, you're not," said Mr. Bennett. "Sometimes I think you are a positive hindrance. And you want too much. You are never content. Why a Canadian should imagine that he should have high wages and shorter working hours beats me."

"Well," said the Ordinary Citizen, "I thought perhaps that as we have more wealth per capita than any other country I might expect to be a little bit better off."

"Such a desire is not only selfish and immoral, but against all economic," said Mr. Bennett. "The rich indeed! Why, who do you think owns the wealth of this country?"

"I thought at one time I did," confessed the Ordinary Citizen, "but I realize now that such a notion is very wrong. You have taught me that. I thank you."

RADICAL NOTIONS

WELL, I'M GLAD to see that you are getting over your red and radical notions," said Mr. Bennett.

"Naturally, the wealth is owned by those who own it. Our duty is to protect them in their ownership."

"Well, that should be simple—there

"I always thought," said the Ordinary Citizen, "that wheat production was our largest industry. And if I am correctly informed, you have just agreed to limit our export of wheat to 200,000,000 bushels a year. Isn't that regulating the output of our industry?"

"That's different," Mr. Bennett said. "That only controls the farmers. What you suggest—the control of industry—would affect the vested interests of the country. We can't do that, you know. That would mean the invasion of private property, the right of a man to do what he likes with his own goods."

"I suppose so," said the Ordinary Citizen, "but I had always thought that wheat was the farmer's private property and yet he can't do what he likes with it under this new wheat treaty. He's got to do what the government says."

TEA RESTRICTION

In April a restriction was placed on tea exports from Ceylon, India, and Java, in order to raise prices to growers, who, for almost four years, had been suffering devastating losses.

Higher prices have resulted, not only at the gardens, but also here on our own markets, and many package teas already cost more than they did six months ago. Some of the finer quality brands are as yet unchanged, however, and are, consequently, even better value than at last April.

The Shining Talent

By ELEANOR EARLY

(Copyright, 1929, by NEA Service Inc.)

Molly gathered her parcels again. Later the florist's clerk was to remember that a young lady in green had bought some flowers, and returned to ask if she might use the phone. When he told her it was out of order, she seemed upset, he said. He directed her to a drug store, and thought no more about it.

CHAPTER XVII

Molly ran down the street, revolving the most preposterous ideas in her mind. Slim Boynton had warned her against the Chicago gunmen. But Slim was a dreadful alarmist. Besides, she hadn't hurt Mandelino. Why, even Slim said the racketeers ought to give Molly a vote of thanks—Slim, who had been so sure they were going to shoot her.

That horrible man was standing in front of the apartment. He had turned, and was facing her. There was nothing to do but to run past him. In another minute she would be in the lobby.

She had reached the lowest step of the broad flight that led to the apartment. And now she saw the man's face quite distinctly. His eyes were wide and hunted—the eyes of a mad man. And his beard was dark and stubby.

Suddenly there was a shot. And another.

But Molly heard only one. And that was so fused with the stinging pain that sang through her shoulder that she could never quite separate them—the shot and the pain.

People came running. Someone telephoned for the police. And someone else called an ambulance.

Jack was there, elbowing his way through the crowd. Bullying the janitor, who sought to assume authority. Bullying even the police, when they arrived. And when the ambulance came, it was he who lifted Molly and laid her gently on the stretcher, and sat beside her, and chafed her still hands.

Excitement spread like fire along the street where Molly lived. And presently Rita and Bob and Zip had heard the news. A girl shot in broad daylight! They ran out and saw the crowd in front of Molly's apartment.

A policeman was dispersing the crowd. And some women were picking up the flowers that Molly had dropped. For souvenirs, probably. Even the roses and strawberry tarts she had carried were being garnered.

Bob reached the policeman, who was waving his arm and shouting, "Move on, cancha? Move on, I say."

"We are friends of the girl who was shot," began Bob.

"Don't know nothin' about it," growled the officer.

"But where have they taken her?" "Relief station." The policeman softened. "Didn't know you was really a friend of hers, Bo. That's what everybody says when they want to know something. They didn't get her, Bullet through the shoulder, as near as I could make out. She'll be all right, I guess. Grab a taxi, and hop down to the Relief station, why don't you?"

Molly was on the operating table, and two surgeons were probing for bullets. Jack was walking nervously up and down the long corridor. Rita saw him from a distance, and her heart seemed to stand still with fear. Bob and Zip had stopped to speak to a group of newspaper men at the door.

"She's on the danger list," one of them said.

"It was the gang from Chicago did it," added another. "The stuff she wrote on the Mandelino trial was as good as asking to be shot."

The door of the operating room opened, and the surgeons walked out, followed by a nurse. They were all in white, and wore rubber gloves. One of them slapped Jack on the back.

"It's all right, young fellow," he said heartily. "We got 'em both. Neat as a whistle."

"Can I see her?" demanded Jack.

"Oh, she's still under ether," replied the surgeon casually. "As I reckon she's not going to feel like receiving for a while. But there's nothing to worry about. One of the nurses will let you know when you can see her. They'll be moving her out of there in a few minutes."

Another man had joined the reporters' group. A tall, thin chap, with red hair and rounded shoulders.

"Look! Rita grabbed Jack's arm. 'That's Red Flynn—Molly's office. Haven't you ever heard her speak of him? Let's ask him what he knows about it.'"

Red was already talking with Bob and Zip, and in a moment they came to join Jack and Rita. Red was very pale, and Rita noted the way his freckles stood out. Big brown freckles, like Wesley Barry's.

"They've got the man who did it," he told them brusquely. "Dopey Dan, a hophead that used to be with the Mandelino gang. Crazy as a bedbug. Popped Molly off for target practice, I guess. They found a lot of names in his pocket, with Judge Brewster and the district attorney up at the top."

"Good Lord! Where did they get him?" broke in Jack.

"Columbus avenue."

Red drew a box of cigarettes from his pocket, and passed them around. Rita noticed that his hand was trembling and she wondered if it could be that Red was in love with Molly. She knew that they were working together on a play. She looked quickly at Jack, to see if he, too, had noticed Red's extreme nervousness.

Uncle Wiggily and the Saw Fish

(By H. R. GARIS)

"All aboard! All aboard!" barked the Old Sea Dog. "Get on! Get on quickly!" said Uncle Wiggily. "He doesn't like to stand still long without chasing his tail!"

"I'll help them out," offered Mr. Whitewash, the kind Polar Bear gentleman. "And I'll play a tune for them," said Mr. Stubbail, the brown bear, as he blew some grains of sand out of his mouth organ.

All this happened on the ocean beach not far from Uncle Wiggily's sea shore shack, where he was staying with his family for the summer. The bunny children were looking at the new merry-go-round which Mr. Whitewash had brought from the city.

The merry-go-round was placed upon the strong back of the Old Sea Dog and when he twisted about, chasing his tail, he turned the whirling.

"Come on!" shouted Baby Bunty, and she climbed up on the back of a wooden rooster. For Mr. Whitewash, with his strong claws like knives, had carved many creatures out of driftwood for the merry-go-round, so that it was just like one at Coney Island, only not so large, being for rabbit children mostly.

Up on the backs of the wooden animals climbed Baby Bunty and the other rabbit children. Uncle Wiggily and Mr. Whitewash saw that they were safely seated.

"All ready!" called Mr. Longears. "Play, if you please, Mr. Stubbail!" The brown bear blew on his mouth organ.

"Chase your tail, Old Sea Dog!" said Mr. Whitewash.

The Sea Dog began to whirl about, and this turned the merry-go-round and the whirling so that the bunny children had fine rides on the wooden animals.

"Are you a carpenter?"

"This is saving me a lot of money!" chuckled Uncle Wiggily, for up to this time his forty-seven sixteen rabbit children had begged pennies from him several times a day to pay for rides on the boardwalk merry-go-round.

"But now I have a merry-go-round of my own," said Mr. Longears. After watching for a while the fun his children were having, Uncle Wiggily thought he would hop along the beach and look for an adventure.

"I'll take care of the children for you and see that they come to no harm," offered Mr. Whitewash.

"And I'll keep on playing music for them," promised Mr. Stubbail, blowing some more sand out of his mouth organ.

"O. K.," said Uncle Wiggily. Down the seashore beach he hopped until he was out of sight of his shack and could no longer hear the music from the merry-go-round.

"This is just the place for an adventure!" whispered the rabbit gentleman, for he wished to make no noise. An adventure might be hiding under any bunch of seaweed and Mr. Longears did not want to frighten it away. He hopped along softly and, all of a sudden, when he reached a little pool of water, left when the tide went out, he heard a call:

"Help! Help! Who is going to help me?"

"Why, I'll help you if you are not a Bad Chap," offered the rabbit gentleman.

"I hope I'm not a Bad Chap," went on the voice, which came from a little pool of water left by the falling tide. "No one has ever called me a Bad Chap."

"Then I do not believe that you are one," said Uncle Wiggily. "But who are you and what do you look like?"

"Here I am," said the voice, and up out of the puddle of sea water, with a thrust a big, fishy head with what seemed to be a double-edged saw in front of it.

"Why, you must be a carpenter!" exclaimed the rabbit.

"Well, I have a saw and, of course, carpenters have saws," said the chap in the puddle. "I'm what is called a saw fish, but now my saw does me little good."

"Why can't your saw do you any good?" asked the rabbit, quite happy now that he had found an adventure.

"Because it can't saw me out of this puddle," said the fish. "I am stuck in it and I can't get out until next high tide unless I have some help. And this pool is very small for me."

"I'll help you!" offered Mr. Longears, always ready to be kind. And next, if the letter doesn't jump out of the envelope and go mail itself in the post box, I'll tell you about Uncle Wiggily digging a canal. I hope he doesn't fall in.

COURT UPHOLDS WIFE'S SECRETS IN HER DIARY

Associated Press

Budapest, Sept. 7.—Has a wife the right to keep a diary?

Yes, the highest court in Hungary has ruled, and her thoughts and feelings as expressed in it do not constitute grounds for divorce.

The question was the center of a recent divorce case with final rejection of the husband's petition. Names of the couple were withheld from the public. The story as it came out in court follows:

Two years ago a man of wealth married a nineteen-year-old girl of a family which then was prosperous. After the husband's return from a divorce, the couple returned from a honeymoon trip of three months abroad, the wife announced she had kept a diary since meeting her husband.

"These are my most secret thoughts," she said. "I have kept a diary, in which I can confide, and besides I wish to keep the diary because I have literary ambitions. But you must give me your word of honor never to read it."

The husband complied. Some time later, leaving through a notebook left on a table, he saw an entry which aroused his suspicion. His wife was coming home at that moment, he could not read further.

Haunted by jealousy, he sent the wife to a watering place, and read the diary. The day before the wedding

Sister MARY'S KITCHEN

By SISTER MARY

When you taste the raw fruit of the quince, it hardly seems possible that really delicious sweets can be concocted from it. So much for the culinary art!

A cousin of the apple, the quince may be cooked in almost any way in which apples are cooked. Its adaptability and delicious flavor make it deserving of a high place among our fruits.

Plain canned quinces are excellent in winter fruit salads. They have a pleasant tang that combines well with other fruits and their firm texture prevents them from crushing and becoming mushy. As the last call for fall canning and preserving, if you feel you are a little short on your winter provisions, it will pay to try some of the quince goodies and fill up the empty spaces on the preserve cupboard shelves.

Quince honey is decidedly disapproved. You will find quince for it. Combined with cream cheese in sandwiches or served plain with hot rolls or toast are two popular ways to use it, but a few spoonfuls added to jellied fruit salads and desserts give an unusual and intriguing flavor.

QUINCE HONEY

Pare and core quinces. Grate or put through food-chopper. Measure. To three cups of grated quince add 1 cup of water and cook until fruit is tender. Slowly stir in four cups of granulated sugar and cook fifteen or twenty minutes longer. Pour into sterilized jelly glasses and cover with paraffine. Cover with a second layer of paraffine when cold.

QUINCE CHIPS

Six pounds quinces, 10 cups granulated sugar, 1/4 pound crystallized ginger, 3 lemons.

Pare and cut quinces in very thin slices, removing core. Cover with water and cook until fruit is tender and water is evaporated. Wash lemons and remove seeds. Cut ginger in paper thin slices. Add lemons, sugar and ginger to quinces and cook until mixture is thick. Pour into sterilized jelly glasses and cover with two layers of paraffine.

There are also many delectable desserts usually associated with apples that are equally good made with quinces. Baked quince dumplings, quince roly-poly, quince tarts, quince whip and baked quinces are a few seasonal desserts. Quince sauce is made like apple sauce and serves as the foundation for many desserts.

To-morrow's Menu

Breakfast: Concord grapes, cereal, cream, bacon and tomato sandwiches, milk, coffee.

Luncheon: Baked squash, lettuce sandwiches, quince whip with custard sauce, milk, tea.

Dinner: Planked blue pike, French fried and sweet potatoes, succotash, mixed vegetable salad, quince roly-poly, milk, coffee.

Glorifying Yourself

By ALICIA HART

If you are planning to try one of the new fall coiffures, you will probably need a permanent wave.

These new styles of hair dress are so different from the old ones that they have rows and rows of little curls at the back of the neck. Naturally, curls of curls are easier to retain if you have a permanent.

Shop around a bit before you decide on the place to get your wave. There is no economy in getting a bargain-permanent. The best is none too good for your hair. Remember that the operator who does the winding is more important than the kind of wave. If the winding is done properly and your hair is tested before anything is done, you won't have split ends and falling hair.

The test curl is all important. Only by making a test of one lock of hair before anything else is done, does the operator know what strength lotion to use and how much heat to apply.

If you dislike sitting under a heavy hot machine, by all means investigate the new machine-less permanents before you make your appointment. They take much less time, are not painful at all and there is no danger of getting burned since no heat is applied. The action takes place in the pads which are treated with various chemicals. The pads get hot the minute they are put around the hair and then start to cool in less than five minutes. In spite of all their seemingly simple

The favorite cartoon of to-day peeks fun at the child liberators. Behold a much-bored youngster saying to his mother, or his teacher, "Do we have to do whatever we want to do again?"

I know it would come to this. Present any one with too much time and too little to do and he becomes the weariest person on earth.

We all need direction. Few of us are capable of originating ideas. We try to have our lives planned and our time proportioned although we may grow about monotony and grind and all that.

Children are the same way. They do better under routine. They do better under the seven—twelve—six system for meals and the same bedtime hours. Scramble their days and in a week they will wonder what is wrong.

WORKING WITH A PURPOSE

Programs are great things—regular hours for everything and to be told what to do with those hours.

Give a little fellow a carpenter box and a board. Say, "Now go to it, son, and make something."

For that day he will saw, hammer and plane from sheer joy of the tool in his hand. But at the end of the day he will have a queer mixture of nothing. "What is it, boy?" you ask.

"Well, I started out to make a box, then I thought I'd make a wagon, and it sort of turned into a wheel, nothing much, I guess."

In a few days he won't look at his tools.

On the other hand, if we say, "Buddy, try and build me a bird house to nail on that maple tree over there and look at the one over at Mr. Barnes' and try to get the idea." Then Buddy, under suggestion and direction and with a definite purpose, will handle his tools with a new interest.

Definite purpose is the secret of content in work.

I use this illustration, but it typifies a thousand things, large and small. One of them is the school system.

Experimental schools are frankly what their name implies. As yet they claim nothing they have not proved.

THE "LOOSER" SYSTEM

It is inevitable that in making a change from our old rigid system that we over-step in some directions. And I think there is danger here.

Most experimental schools are keeping an eye on this very matter of too much independence on the child's part, and too little direction from the supervisor. They know that the directed child, working under orders is better off than the one at a loose end. Mental confusion, a feeling of futility, and torpid minds and bodies will result if children are left too much on their own.

PUBLIC WORKS MOVE DISLIKED

Victoria Conservatives Move to Check Plan to Close Head Office Here

Plans of Ottawa politicians to transfer the head office in British Columbia of the Dominion Department of Public Works from Victoria to Vancouver, leaving only a skeleton staff here, resulted in action on the part of the central executive of the Victoria Conservative Association yesterday evening.

A number of officials in the public works here have already received their notices of dismissal. Three engineers and a stenographer are also being let out at New Westminster. The dismissals are effective on November 1. J. P. Forde, public works engineer here, has been in Ottawa conferring with the minister on the changes. Final details of these will not be known until Mr. Forde's return.

Protest against the removal of the office from Victoria, which has been here since the earliest days, has been made in letters from the Conservative executive to Premier Bennett, Hon. W. A. Gordon, Minister of Public Works, to B.C. Senators, and to D. B. Plunkett, M.P. for Victoria, and C. H. Dickie, M.P. for Nanaimo. The meeting passed a strongly worded resolution of protest.

MUCH PROPERTY HERE
It was pointed out that the Dominion Government has more than $15,000,000 of property, docks, drydocks, marine and naval works in the Victoria and Esquimalt area and because of this it was important that the head coast office of the department be retained here.

It was also asserted during the meeting that the next move planned by Ottawa was to close the Indian offices here and move them to Vancouver. The Victoria and Island members were urged to take action to safeguard the interests of their constituents.

B.C. TOBACCO GIVEN PRAISE

A. McRae of Ottawa Thinks Totem Plantation at Sumas Excellent

"In my opinion you have here one of the best, if not the best tobacco growing area in Canada," remarked N. A. McRae, of the Tobacco Division of the Dominion Government, after reviewing the Totem tobacco plantation in the Sumas area of this province. The plantation consists of eighty acres of choice tobacco, the result of years of experimentation and cultivation at the hands of expert growers.

Tobacco growing in British Columbia is expanding, and the favorable climatic conditions for the growth of the plant are now established. A new industry, it has from the outset pioneered its way through the initial stages, and is now entering a period where the growers can look for definite returns from their enterprise. Encouraged by results, they point to the preference for Canadian tobacco in British markets, most of which hitherto has been secured from Ontario. With the almost unlimited possibilities offered in the English market, British Columbia growers feel they are on the threshold of a new producing era in the industry.

Tobacco grown in this province is already becoming popular, and growers are confident that with the prestige of the local product firmly established, smokers in British Columbia will show marked preference for the home product.

SPIRITUALISTS WILL MEET HERE

Under the auspices of the B.C. Spiritualists' Association the seventh annual convention will open in Victoria Saturday. Delegates will arrive Saturday and in the evening a banquet will be held, starting at 6:30 p.m. Those desiring to attend are requested to telephone E 0528.

Following the banquet there will be cards, dancing and a social, prizes being provided. Ticket holders are asked to go to the Burns Hall, where notice of which will be posted. Unforeseen circumstances preventing the banquet being held there, Sunday, at 2:30 p.m., a joint service of the Spiritual Science Temple and the First Spiritualist Church will be held at 1216 Broad Street, conducted by visiting mediums.

COLORWOOD

Choir practice will be resumed for the winter months and the first practice is set for Friday at 8 o'clock in the church.

Sunday school will be held in the hall at 10 o'clock Sunday morning. The newly-appointed vicar, Rev. A. M. Acheson-Lyle, will take up residence at the home of Capt. F. James while renovations are being made to the vicarage.

Free! A can of Shoe Polish with the purchase of "Jet," the hot stove polish. Ask your grocer.

PROFITEERING GETS A JOLT

AAA Goes After Manufacturers Who Would Benefit Unduly From Reconstruction

Cotton Goods Prices Rise So Fast People Refuse to Buy, Is Charge

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, Sept. 7.—The Agricultural Adjustment Administration, which houses more brains than any other federal emergency agency—is all steamed up.

The AAA fellows, supercilious toward the hell-bent NRA crowd, expect to achieve something thus far impossible for NRA. They will demand of an industry:

"Tell us everything about your costs and profits if you want help." Secretary Wallace has invited proof from cotton textile manufacturers who say the 4½ cents processing tax on cotton has forced cotton goods to such high prices that they cannot be sold.

The profiteering issue will be publicly aired. The AAA's trained economists are study alleged cost pyramids and increases of wholesale cotton goods of up to 50 per cent. They expect to have the industry on the defensive from the start.

WALLACE WANTS PROOF
The industry reached an all-time production peak in July, after speeding the NRA code, with its higher labor costs, and the tax. Now, when its tremendous output is not bought at advanced prices, some manufacturers blame AAA. The AAA objects to being singled out in preference to NRA and doubts whether there is a legitimate complaint anywhere.

Wallace can modify the tax, but won't yield without dollars and cents proof. Dr. Fred C. Howe, AAA consumers' counsel, has checked cotton goods retail prices and will provide Wallace with ammunition. He says the processing tax factor is 3½ cents in a 78-cent work shirt, and only 8 cents in either a $1.26 pair of overalls or a $1.13 shirt.

LONG HOURS AT NRA
NRA, which uses the blue eagle on its stationery, says its employees anywhere from eight to fourteen hours a day. You hear more and more wisecracks about this, and eventually something may be done about it. Meanwhile, many recently dismissed government clerks walk the streets looking for work.

A sub-official who manages to avoid long hours, says jauntily: "The people who will run this place next year are the ones who are getting their sleep now."

STILL HAS INFLUENCE
Harry Hayden, once associated with the famous Senator Fenimore and more lately secretary to Executive Secretary Bob Lucas of the G.O.P. national committee (the villain of the George W. Norris plot), continues to make comfortable landings, despite a Republican background.

He is secretary to T. Dwight Webb, of us.

SEIZING FAME BY THE EARS

Here is Ed. Kottwitz, who took first honors in the United States corn-on-the-cob-eating championship at Ortonville, Minn. Kottwitz had gnawed only thirty ears when this photo was made, but he went right on to fifty for a clean sweep.

Tennessee member of the Home Loan Board, and exerts a lot of influence.

"VOLUNTEER" WHEAT

Ever hear of "volunteer wheat"? It is one of the minor problems of the AAA in that organization's wheat allotment campaign and is what they call wheat which has not been sown, but results from a lot of grains being spilled and blown around.

Sometimes such a crop amounts to eight or ten bushels. Indians cannot understand why Uncle Sam won't count "volunteer wheat" when he allots.

SENATOR TYDINGS BUSY
Senator Millard Tydings, whose state of Maryland is so near that he has many job-hunting visitors, has stuck this sign on his office door:

"This office receives requests for 100 interviews daily. It receives over 300 letters daily."

"Due to these conditions we will have to ask persons making calls to come in between 10 a.m. and 12 noon. After that the office will be closed, and all day on Saturday. This is the only way we can keep up with the work and have time to act on the requests made of us."

KITSILANO BOYS' BAND PLAYS HERE

World's Champions Will Visit Victoria on Saturday, September 16

The Kitsilano Boys' Band will be heard in Victoria next week. Fresh from their triumph at Chicago, where they won the world's championship for junior bands, the boys are to give a concert in the Victoria City Temple Saturday night, September 16.

Bandmaster A. W. Delmont will lead the band in a programme of classical, popular and novelty music, which will include the Chicago test pieces. Soloists will also be given.

Seeking new fields to conquer, the boys propose to make a tour of England a few months hence, and have already made plans to play at the Crystal Palace. The proceeds of next week's concert will go to augment the fund already opened for the purpose of financing this trip.

Eyebrow Plucking Assailed By Doctor

Reuter's Special to The Victoria Times

London, Sept. 7.—Disappearance of the eyebrows was formerly an important symptom of a gland deficiency producing mental disorder, said Dr. Rutherford, an Irish specialist, at the conference of the British Medical Association in Dublin, Ireland. Therefore, he continued, women who pluck out their eyebrows and replace them with pencilled lines look as if they might be going mad to the mental specialist.

"It is a matter for regret that this valuable eyebrow sign is no longer available in many of the younger women to-day, owing to the development of the habit of eyebrow-plucking, and its replacement by a thin black line. I have sometimes thought that the idea must have originated in the brain of some keen beauty expert, who did not fail to recognize the tendency for the irregular and early disappearance of hair in this region, a somewhat difficult feature for his art to overcome, and so he called up the aid of Dame Fashion to decree its complete removal."

URGE FOR SLIMNESS
"One contemplates with some alarm the future of a generation of yet unborn mothers harassed with a desire for slenderness and excessive smoking," Dr. Rutherford continued. "I have known excessive smoking to be the only apparent exciting cause, and indeed I regard it as being a fairly common contributory cause, of mental illness. Its effects are not so obvious as those of alcohol, but the effects are insidious with the production of gastric disturbances, loss of appetite and generally lowered physical condition, which may mental attack likely to occur with little other provocation."

RELIEF PROBE IS SUPPORTED

Trades Council Will Seek Permission to Have Delegates Attend Investigation

The city's investigation into relief administration received the full support of the Victoria and District Trades and Labor Council yesterday evening when that body appointed a special welfare committee to lend any assistance possible to the committee which has been struck by the City Council to probe the matter. The hope was expressed that the trades council's representatives might be allowed to sit in on the investigations and offer suggestions.

The three delegates appointed on the committee were: President Harry Owen, W. J. Campbell and Charles Chivers. These will form a standing committee on relief and welfare.

Considerable time was devoted to the discussion of the relief probe during which there were numerous criticisms made of the present administration.

William Youhill was of the opinion that relief matters should be considered entirely separately from City Council business and dealt with by a special commission.

The action of the labor men was fully supported by Alderman R. T. Williams, who declared that it had made a correct decision and was moving at the right moment.

Seventh Battalion Memorial Tablet

The Seventh Battalion Association intends to place a memorial tablet in the Parliament Buildings in the near future to honor the many members of that unit who lost their lives in the Great War. Vancouver has already raised its quota, and the Victoria veterans of the Seventh intend to raise their allotment of $1,000. Mr. Blakenmore, secretary of the Seventh Battalion Association here, will receive subscriptions. His address is P.O. Box 94. Mr. Blakenmore hopes that members of the old Seventh will come forward with their subscriptions at once so that arrangements may be completed for installing the tablet.

LABOR LEADER FORCES RULING

John Lewis Gets From NRA Chief Definition of Workers' Status

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, Sept. 7.—General Johnson isn't the only "tough baby" here. Perhaps he isn't even the toughest. Burly John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, is a contender. He has bullied and bulldozed his way through a career of absolute power in his big union, ruthlessly suppressing every hint of opposition. Lately he has signed up about 300,000 new members. He wanted over to Johnson the other day, shook his big finger under Johnson's nose and told the NRA administrator:

"Section Seven-A is all labor got out of the recovery act. You're not going to whitie it away!"

The Labor Advisory Board was augmented of itself a whole bunch of tough babies. The group had Johnson on the spot after his public promise to "interpret" the act's labor clause in an attempt to clarify the open and closed shop controversy.

Remembering Johnson's past open shop affiliations, the labor men figured the "interpretation" wouldn't do their cause much good. They felt it might

CATHOLIC WOMEN HEAR MISSIONER

Roland Roberts, Priest-elect, Tells League of Work
Among Chinese

Roland Roberts, whose ordination to the diaconate and to the priesthood will shortly take place, was the guest of honor and the speaker at yesterday evening's meeting of the Victoria Sub-division Catholic Women's League in the Parish Hall, View and Blanshard Streets.

Introduced by the president, Mrs. W. C. McManus, Mr. Roberts, whose career has been followed with keen interest by his many Victoria friends, spoke briefly upon the history and work of the St. Francis Xavier China Mission Centre at Scarborough Bluffs, Ontario, where he has been making his theological studies and his preparation for the life of a missionary to China.

On September 18 an addition to the mission at Scarborough Bluffs is to be opened, which will give twenty more rooms and a large assembly hall. There are forty students from Canada and Newfoundland, nine of the students are completing their studies at Genoa, one in Rome, and there are already seventeen missionary priests of this seminary in the field.

Mr. Roberts referred to the leading article in the mission journal, "Call to Arms," by Father F. Stringer, as being typical of the needs of China, for the alleviation of which an organized body of missionaries and the co-operation of the people were the two most important factors. These are in existence through the efforts of Father Fraser and the generosity of the people of Canada and Newfoundland, who have financed his undertaking.

Rev. Father Albury, chaplain of Victoria, subdivision, thanked Father Roberts for his interesting resume of the work of the missions to which he is to consecrate his life.

REPORTS GIVEN
The business meeting of the league included reports of the summer activities. Mrs. Mahoney reporting for the many visits paid St. Joseph's Hospital, and Mrs. Webb for the Jubilee Hospital. Miss H. O'Brien reviewed the social service programme during the summer months. Mrs. Williams and Mrs. Fraser were voluntary visitors for St. Joseph's Hospital and Vernon Villa during the coming month.

Mrs. McLennan gave the secretary's report and Mrs. Gavin the report of finances, the latter was elected to the executive, since Miss McKay, treasurer, will shortly return to fill her office. Mrs. McLennan paid tribute to the excellent work done by Mrs. Gavin. The monthly meeting in future will be held on the first Wednesday of every month. An appeal for the continued support of the Women's Workroom was heard with interest and support promised.

RETREAT FOR LADIES
Rev. Father Albury announced that a retreat for ladies would be conducted at St. Joseph's Hospital on September 14, 15 and 16 by Rev. Father L. J. Bradley, who will leave shortly after for England. Those wishing information may communicate with Mrs. Bridges. Donations for the Diocesan hope chest may be made to Mrs. R. A. Duncan and Miss H. O'Brien. Reference was made to the remaining list and literature was solicited. A novel plan for collecting funds was introduced by Mrs. Kennedy and immediately placed in circulation.

A special afternoon and evening social will be held for funds on Tuesday, September 9. Mrs. Blair Reid will convene contract and auction, bridge and tea in the afternoon, and Miss O'Brien will convene auction bridge and 500 in the evening. Mrs. Kissinger will be in charge of home cooking and candy.

On Wednesday evening, September 13, a social for members of Victoria subdivision will be held in the hall, with Mrs. de Biaggi as hostess. The president announced the date of the annual bazaar, December 7, 8 and 9, when the Catholic Women's League will have the assistance and support of the other church societies.

Eton Boys Give Headmaster
Motor Car Instead Tips of Fat Cheques

Reuter's Special to The Victoria Times
London, Sept. 7.—Mayfair has also "broken up" for its summer holidays. A row of empty milk bottles is all that is to be seen outside the fashionable homes.

Except for those who have to keep the wheels of industry going, all London has gone away—some to the Continent (but not so many as last year), and more to the English countryside and seaside.

We are a queer race. Every year, in August, we go away at the same time to the same place. Nothing short of an earthquake or a revolution could stop us. It astonishes overseas visitors.

This is also the season for spring-cleaning London's clubs. There are lots of dismal-faced club "orphans" wandering about in strange premises.

Every August there is a sort of barter in clubmen; we become the guests of other clubs while our own are being renovated.

Etonians on holiday until September 21 are wondering what the new regime under Claude Elliott, the new headmaster, is going to be like.

Eton's gift of a motor-car to the retiring "head," Dr. Cyril Alington, provoked a gossip-writer to recall that once there was an ancient custom under which Oppidians used to "tip" the headmaster when leaving for their holidays.

They used to leave a cheque in an envelope on the head's table. Old Dr. Hawtrey was renowned for his tact in accepting these "tips."

Inflation in New Zealand Failed to Help Farmer, Says A. W. Cliffe

Confidence Gradually Returning With Improved Prices in Wool Market

When Premier George W. Forbes and his government inflated the New Zealand pound and Hon. W. Downie Stewart, his finance minister, resigned from the cabinet because of his opposition to inflation, it was confidently hoped that the policy would aid the farmer of that country in the marketing of his products.

But the desired objective was not accomplished and the New Zealanders are getting a little restive about it, according to A. W. Cliffe, well-known business man of Vancouver, who returned from Auckland to-day by the New Zealand.

"They've got to do something about the exchange in New Zealand," said Cliffe. "It stands at present at a level which is proving a bar to export trade. It has resulted in a lot of criticism among the people down there. The farmers are loudest in the denunciation of the policy."

The New Zealand Government raised the exchange from 10 to 25 per cent in order to place the currency of the country on a more favorable level with the English pound and build up exports. It would appear now to have failed as a device for the New Zealand people's are greatly disturbed over the exchange question.

Premier Forbes is on his way back to New Zealand via the United States after attending the World Economic Conference and it is not expected that anything will be done in the matter before his return home.

UPREND IN WOOL

Mr. Cliffe, who went to Auckland on business trip, said there are signs of confidence gradually returning in New Zealand, although the unemployed situation is still serious.

The reason for the increasing optimism is the result of the improved wool market. Wool prices in Australia, he said, have increased from 35 to 30 per cent. The wool sales in New Zealand will be held later in the year.

With the decided upturn of the wool market, the New Zealanders are given a much improved outlook.

Have Icy Bath While Fishing

Len Woodhouse and Kenneth Godson Spend Hour and a Half in Qualicum Waters

Details of an accident, which although it provided an element of danger at the time appears funny to two Victoria fishermen as they view it afterwards being related with the return from Qualicum of Len Woodhouse and Kenneth Godson where they had been staying with their families at the island resort.

They were about a mile and a half from shore fishing when their boat capsized just as the two were changing over to row. Eight fish in the boat were returned to their watery homes and nearly 800 worth of fishing gear was lost. The fishermen were forced to spend an hour and a half in the icy waters before help arrived and kept themselves afloat by holding onto the overturned boat. They had shouted for help until they could only whisper when just before the rescue boats arrived. Mr. Godson saw a wallet floating by and grabbed it. He discovered it contained $40. He was just considering his luck in having the accident when he further discovered that it belonged to Mr. Woodhouse. They also succeeded in recovering one of the fish.

BRUHN OUT AS INDEPENDENT

Salmon Arm, B.C., Sept. 7.—R. W. Bruhn, former Minister of Public Works, asked electors in a speech here yesterday evening to elect men to the next Provincial Legislature who would form a real union-government.

Only a number of the best men available, with party machines scrapped, he said, could meet the challenge of these times. Mr. Bruhn asserted that before he was nominated as an independent candidate, free of any party association whatever.

"I hope and my firm opinion," he said, "is that the next election will return enough men of independent thought and free of party lines to form a real union ministry, a ministry not bound to any party, but obligated to any party machine, not under the necessity of providing patronage for any of its followers."

Mr. Bruhn's speech was accepted as inaugurating the campaign of independent candidates to gain control of the Legislature.

Besides advocating union government, Mr. Bruhn came out for sweeping national and provincial reforms, holding the present system of society must be reconstructed or it would perish. But, after an analysis of its proposals, the opposition, the Federation of the United Communities, Federation on the ground Canada was not ready for the complete socialism.

He presented a detailed platform which called for health insurance, unemployment insurance, shorter working hours, a highway commission, a public utility commission, taxation relief for the small income earners, and a board of economic welfare to guide and influence the development and conduct of all British Columbia industry. While this was a federal matter, he advocated the regulation of industry by the government for the good of the whole people.

GREAT PROBLEMS
"The problems confronting us to-day are too large and too new to be solved by any one man, by any one group or party," he said. "They require the concerted efforts and the combined wisdom of all the people if they are to be solved at all. The situation is too grave to be met by any one party struggling for party advantage. I do not believe any government formed on party lines, with a party organization to maintain, with the patronage hunters constantly at its door, can meet our present-day problems. Besides, I do not believe in a programme of any one party in this election is really designed to meet our existing conditions, but was founded rather on problems long since solved, on conditions no longer obtaining. To-day we need an entirely new line of policy for our problems which, as each of us has found in his own business are entirely new."

AUSTRALIA'S ROUND CORNER

Depression Started There First and Ends There First, Says Visitor

Prof. A. H. Charteris Describes Object of Empire Relations Conference

"Australia is round the corner," said Professor A. H. Charteris, who passed through Victoria on the S.S. Monowal this morning. "Australia was the first to be hit," he said. "The depression reached the country two years before it did the United States, but now through the economies that were absolutely essential, in spite of a serious accumulated deficit Australia last year had a large surplus. "There has been a great increase in the price of exports and a considerable rise in customs revenue. Wool, which is Australia's staple product, has just reached its highest price of twenty-two pence per pound."

Professor Charteris is one of the Australian delegates to the conference being held in Toronto on September 11 and following days, under the auspices of the Canadian Institute of National Affairs to discuss the diplomatic relations of the British Commonwealth of Nations. The conference is being held at the Kyoto conference of 1929. At a private meeting it was decided that a purely British conference would serve the purpose of the conference. Delegates from the United Kingdom are much the same as at Banff, and include Viscount Cecil and Sir Herbert Samuel. New Zealand and Australia are both represented and South Africa may be. The Irish Free State was to have been, but the election has made that impossible.

The conference will be a heart to heart talk with a view to deciding on a common policy for the whole Empire. No resolutions will be passed, as it is necessary to come to a universal agreement. The conference will be a full discussion on the subject of communications between the various dominions and Great Britain, the dominions and foreign countries, and the dominions among themselves. Canada has her own representatives abroad, but the other dominions are content to make use of the British diplomatic service.

Professor Charteris stressed the fact that this meeting will deal entirely with diplomatic questions. There will be no discussion of defence or of commerce. Owing to the absence of Legations it is hoped that the conference will be really fruitful and that the difficulties of the Empire will be met by any resolution which would be necessary have to embrace all together.

Four Engineers Will Retire

Federal Public Works New and Old Undertakings in B.C. to Be Sharply Curtailed

Four of the eight engineers at the office of the Works Department here have received notification that their services are dispensed with as from November 19 next. Two of the engineers are returned soldiers.

Besides the 50 per cent cut in the engineering staff under Chief Engineer J. F. Forde, which has charge of all federal works, the department has undertaken along the Pacific Coast from Alaska to Washington, as well as Dominion public buildings and other structures throughout the province, the office staff is being cut.

Chief Engineer Forde is due back in Victoria to-morrow from Ottawa, where he has been working out details of the cuts in the department with Hon. W. A. Gordon, Minister of Public Works.

There have been intimations received here that Ottawa plans to move the Coast headquarters of the department to Vancouver. The office has been in Victoria since it was established on the Coast.

Similar reductions in staff are reported to be under way at New Westminster, where the department has maintained a branch.

It is not known yet how many of the four engineers will be left in the staff here will remain in Victoria. Some have already been informed that they may expect to be moved to either the mainland or other parts of the province before the end of the year.

The four engineers here who have received their notices will all draw superannuation when they leave office on October 1. The superannuation, however, will vary according to length of service and the amount he has been paying in monthly to the fund.

Cutbacks of the staff here and the plan to move the offices to Vancouver is being urged by Mr. Gordon and Hon. H. H. Stevens, B.C.'s minister in the Bennett cabinet, on the grounds of economy.

It was also explained by the department that in the years immediately following there will be very few new public works undertaken by the Dominion government, as it is considered that the country is now equipped with such facilities far ahead of its population.

Changes in modes of transportation are also having an effect, it was explained. This is shown along the coast where isolated settlements are now connected with highways and motors. Formerly they were served only by boat. The result is that the department already has abandoned many wharves and landings, no longer being used by settlers.

With regard to the annual banquet, a tentative date of December 15 was set, although the matter was left in the hands of the executive council. A new pension scheme was reported during August, the meeting was held, and adjustment was more difficult to obtain. The sinking fund of the branch was being well-maintained and the whole financial situation in the club was better than ever before. A strong paid-up membership list was being maintained, the committee reported and requested members to keep their dues paid up so that the strength could be maintained.

POLLINATION BY BEE PRICELESS

C. E. Jeffrey Tells Victoria Horticultural Society of Bee's Value to Growers

According to experiments conducted at the Dominion Experimental Farm at Saanichton it was found that cross-fertilization, such as is provided by the pollen-carrying bee, increases the vigor of the offspring and more fruit is produced, stated C. E. Jeffrey of the Experimental Station staff in an address on "Bees and Their Relation to Horticulture" before the Victoria Horticultural Society yesterday evening.

There are no better agents for the pollination of plants than the honey bee, he stated, and they are very necessary for the fertilization of the stone fruits. He related how at the Experimental Station they had experimented with pears and found that self-fertilization caused inferior fruits while cross-fertilization produced better and larger.

Many ideas, new to horticulturists, were expressed by Mr. Jeffrey who affirmed that in some places the grower finds it profitable to lease apiaries for the express purpose of cross-fertilization. "Even if honey has no value," he stated, "fruit growers would be well advised to keep bees or offer a bonus to anyone who would keep them in grower's orchards."

The reason why the Courtney and Albert districts produced more honey than many other districts was attributed to the plentiful supply of fireweed around there. Fireweed was held to be one of the best producers of nectar and it is possible to get a high-grade honey from the plant, which grows on burned-over ground.

New York Americans Rumored Ready to Drop From N.H.L.

Lester Patrick May Have to Break Up His Famous Front Line

Brown and Kilpatrick Clean Up Boxing in New York State

WHILE Lester Patrick, manager of the New York Rangers, is endeavoring to sign up recalcitrant members of his team, which holds the Stanley Cup, rumors are afloat that Bill Dwyer's New York Americans will not be represented in the N.H.L. this winter. Those closely identified with hockey and its leaders take little stock in this annual story although on one Gotham, even concerning Patrick and his team.

The Americans have not named a manager for the 1933-34 season, and, as a matter of fact, their only player transaction of any consequence resulted in the sale of Vernon Ayres, rangy defenseman, to the Montreal Maroons. It is no secret that every member of the Americans is on the block save Normie Himes and Bill Bridge. Boy Workers can be had for a price, but that is not likely.

Reporters have said that Patrick is worried about holdouts. The two Cooks, Bill and Bun, and Frankie Boucher are said to be slated for increases, while Andy and the great Cecil Dillon may be rewarded for their sterling play following last season. Bill Cook, according to well-founded reports, wishes to hold down a defence position, while Andy Dillon, who has numbered and a position behind the blue line might add to the team. Patrick will be forced to break up the most famous scoring combination in hockey, one that will go down in history for its sheer ability to get goals.

New York boxing, which has been sinking deep in the doldrums, at last appears to have found a pair of champions in Jim Brown, fastest new member of the state athletic commission, and Col. John Red Kilpatrick, successor to the late William Muldoon as commissioner. Disputed as a result of fake fights, chiseling tactics of promoters, uneven contests and bad decisions the Gotham boxing folk now see a ray of hope in the inauguration of a new regime. At least the actions of Brown and Kilpatrick indicate a lot of petty work is at an end.

Commissioner Brown has laid down the law to all promoters, and matchmakers in the state. This includes Jimmy Johnston, matchmaker for Madison Square Garden. According to allegations, certain clique has been in control of boxing in New York City, with fighters refused matches unless they cut in the fliers. A number of leading European fighters refused to visit the United States last winter because they had been notified to leave by the managers. Col. Kilpatrick hopes to restore boxing at the Garden to its normal state and has raised the bars to any notepunch scraper. This means that Tony Herrera, Steve Halako, Young Corbett, Baby Casanova and Young Tommy, who were turned down previously by the Garden, will receive their opportunity at last.

Jack Westrope, latest riding sensation on North America tracks, who is seriously threatening the modern record for winning mounts in a year established last year by Johnny Gilbert, when he booted home 212 winners, is now being tutored by the great Sande. Westrope is a smart young fellow. Furthermore, he is a brilliant race rider. But his bosses apparently figure he can stand a bit more bruising up on the finer points of the art and have put him under the wing of Sande. Westrope, like so many other apprentice boys, was brought along by a former star rider, Olie Foster.

For four seasons, Taylor has directed the affairs of the local organization with great success, and his election at yesterday evening's meeting was high in their praise of his efforts.

With Taylor, Bill Erickson was returned to the office of secretary-treasurer. Frank Shandley, Alec Cudlip and Ernie Cook were elected to the office of referee. The meeting was held at the Victoria Hotel, and was attended by a large number of delegates from the various teams.

The closing date for entries was set for September 22 with October 6 as the probable opening night. Entries will be received by either Secretary Erickson at 444 Cook Street, or President Taylor at 1187 Princess Street.

ALBERT ADAMS SENIORS' CHAMP

Hamilton Veteran Captures Canadian Title; L. A. Lewis Well Down

Quebec, Sept. 7.—The climax of a competitive golfing career of thirty years came yesterday for Albert A. Adams, Hamilton, Ont., in the form of a national championship. The tall grey-haired golfer captured the championship of the Canadian Seniors Golf Association over the Seignior Club course when he added an eighteen-hole round of 82 to his low mark of 79 Tuesday for thirty-six-hole gross of 161.

His score left far in the rear such established senior players as George L. Robinson, Toronto, the dethroned champion, George S. Lyon, Canada's "Grand Old Man" of golf, and J. Dix Fraser, 1931 senior titleholder. Second gross honors went to J. Dix Fraser, Lambton, Toronto. Fraser put together rounds of 85 and 82 for a thirty-six-hole total of 167, and third place was gained by Thomas Rennie, Toronto, with 87-82-169.

L. A. Lewis, Vancouver, posted a gross score of 186, far behind the winner. Lewis negotiated the first eighteen holes Tuesday in 94 and went in the final round yesterday in 92.

Esquimalt, Thistles, Victoria West and Victoria City Are Probable Teams

Intercity Games Plan Up in Air

New Vancouver Senior Circuit Disrupts Arrangements; Only One League Here

With the football factions in Vancouver having plenty of trouble getting matters ironed out for the opening of the forthcoming season, Victoria followers of soccer are wondering what will happen in local circles. It was learned to-day from good authority that the Victoria division of the Pacific Coast League will operate the same as last year, with at least four clubs, Esquimalt, Saanich Thistles, Victoria West and Victoria City. Whether or not the league will take in any other teams will be decided at a meeting to be held tomorrow evening.

Last year the Coast League operated here with great success. The teams staged a good league among themselves, besides engaging in intercity fixtures with the four teams of the Vancouver first division of the Coast League, New Westminster Royals, St. Saviours, St. Andrews and Nanaimo City. These intercity games proved an outstanding success here, attracting large crowds and producing some fine football.

Plans for the continuance of these matches this season were well under way until yesterday's announcement from Vancouver, to the effect that a new senior league had been formed there, including Nanaimo, North Shore, Cowan-Dodson and Renfrew Argyle. Just what action the Coast League will take on the loss of Nanaimo from the first division is not known. Switching of Nanaimo to the other league, also disrupts the plans for the intercity games here to some extent.

It is understood that Duncan, who played in the Victoria and District League last season, and won the championship, is expected to join the local division of the Coast League. Just how the upland club's application for membership will be dealt with will be determined at the meeting of the league. Advance information is that the managers of the other four Coast League clubs do not favor the plan of taking their teams to Duncan, owing to the cost entailed in making the trip throughout the winter.

ONLY ONE LEAGUE HERE Present indications are that the Victoria and District League will not be in operation this season. The league operated last year under the jurisdiction of the Lower Island Football Association, but had a difficult time running in opposition to the Victoria and District League teams. Duncan is the only club ready for the coming season. The Jokers have disbanded, the MacCannans have entered the Wednesday League and the Outer Wharf Rangers have been silent on their plans.

It is expected the Coast League clubs will affiliate with the British Columbia Football Association. The teams may affiliate direct or through the Coast Football Association. The Coast League season around September 23.

Vancouver, Sept. 7.—Formation of a new six-team senior soccer league was accomplished yesterday evening, and contracts have been whereby Con Jones Park will be used by the new league, with games played on the "down under" has proved far more than that. He is an exceptionally fine tennis player and that two-fisted shot of his now has the experts doing mental and literary cartwheels.

Forest Hills, N.Y., Sept. 7.—Vivian McGrath, smiling young man from Australia, and his double-barrelled backhand is playing to standing room in the United States men's tennis championships. Billed strictly as a novelty, the only living player who hits a tennis ball from the port side with both hands grasping the racket, the lad from "down under" has proved far more than that. Forest Hills, N.Y., Sept. 7.—Vic Fleming, Syracuse, took all possible honors on the abbreviated grand circuit programme at the New York state fair track yesterday, winning all heats in three successive races, the classified trot, 2:24 pace and the free-for-all pace. More than 4,000 braved rain to watch the races.

Several carloads of horses for the Willows race meet, which opens here on Saturday afternoon, arrived in Victoria this morning from the mainland and racing officials are now preparing for the opening of the fair meet, which usually attracts record crowds.

Practically all owners who raced at Vancouver will bring their entries to Victoria, and among the horses which will appear here are many of the old favorites and some of the newer horseflesh which has come to the coast this season.

Several of the executive officials for the meet arrived on this afternoon's boat, and the remainder are expected to-morrow.

Among the riders here for the seven-day meet will be the apprentice boy Daniels, who has just finished out the week at Hastings Park in Vancouver with a blaze of glory. He rode thirteen winners at the mainland track before taking the leading honors for the week.

Parker and Lott Are Defeated In U.S. Title Play

Former Downed By Keith Gledhill; Lott Falls Before Japanese Youth

Perry Advances With No Trouble

British Davis Cup Ace in Straight Set Win; Jack Crawford Extended

Forest Hills, N.Y., Sept. 7.—Chief among the casualties yesterday in the rapidly tightening international tennis battle for the United States men's singles championship were the "Boy Wonder" from Milwaukee, seventeen-year-old Frankie Parker, and the "Man of Moods" from Chicago, George Martin Lott Jr.

Tournament officials thought so well of Parker's chances beforehand, they "seeded" him as high as fifth in the American list, despite objections, and the fact he was ranked number twelve on the national list.

The youthful holder of the national clay-court championship failed to meet his first real test, and fell before Keith Gledhill, Santa Barbara, Calif., who was not seeded at all—6-3, 6-3, 11-9, 6-3.

Lott's defeat by Ryoosuke Nunoi, youthful Japanese, in five sets, was not much of an upset, according to the seeded positions of the two players, but the American stunned his followers by "blowing up" after winning the first two sets, 6-4, 6-3.

A combination of wildness, peevishness over several close shots and the steadiness of the Japanese at critical stages, enabled Nunoi to pull out an unexpected victory, 5-7, 1-6, 6-1, 6-3, 6-2.

Otherwise, the ranks of the favorites held fast, in a series of brisk third-round matches. Upwards of 5,000 spectators saw the field whittled down to sixteen players for the fourth round to-day.

Three of the four top-seeded favorites, Ellsworth Hines, defending champion, Frank X. Shields and Fred Perry, the British Davis Cup ace, swept through the third round without the loss of a set, but in the fourth, Jack Crawford, Australia, was troubled by the heat and the opposition before downing Jack Tidball, Hollywood, Calif.

Crawford rallied after a shaky start to prevent his match from going five sets. Trailing 3-5 on his rival's service in the fourth set, the rangy Aussie uncorked a series of dazzling volleys to best back Tidball, 6-2, 6-4, 6-2, 7-5.

Shields gave his most convincing exhibition of the tournament in whipping sturdy Don Turnbull, youthful Australian, 6-4, 6-6, 6-3.

Perry defeated eighteen-year-old Marco Hecht, New York, 6-1, 6-4, 6-4. Vines won from Edward R. Avery, England, 6-3, 7-5, 6-1. Wilmer Allison defeated his semi-final partner, Johnny Van Ryn, 4-6, 4-6, 6-1, 6-4, 6-2.

Crawford's next opponent is Sidney B. Wood Jr., New York, who won from Gene Mako, Los Angeles school boy, 7-5, 7-9, 9-7, 6-3.

Robert Murray, McGill University champion, was eliminated by Clifford Sutter, New Orleans, 6-1, 7-5, 6-2. Murray had reached the third round without any play.

Dog Marathon Billed To-day

Toronto, Sept. 7.—Dogs of all sizes and breeds were scheduled to jump into Lake Ontario to-day and swim a quarter of a mile for prizes in the first Canadian National Exhibition canine aquatic championship, with two public address announcers keeping the spectators informed of the progress of their favorites.

First heats of the dog swim two days ago brought 10,000 spectators and many animals jumped or were pushed in the announcers could not identify one from another. Noise and enthusiasm among the contestants were great. One animal became excited he dragged his mistress into the water with him when he took off.

U.S. AMATEUR GOLF TO OPEN

Leading Shotmakers at Cincinnati For Start of Tournament on Monday

Sandy Somerville, London, Ont., to Defend Crown; Play Over Tough Course

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 7.—The vanguards of American golf, the traps and pitfalls of the Kenwood Country Club yesterday, hoping they may place in the United States amateur tourney which starts Monday.

Sandy Somerville, London, Ont., shotmaker and the defending champion, was not yet on the scene of battle but most of the homebred threats were present for the practice firing.

Experts who watched the almon-purs drive and putt yesterday soon became convinced few would break or even equal par 71. They fixed 150 over thirty-six holes as likely to qualify easily for match play rounds.

Players from heretofore have found par impregnable. Eighteen-year-old Bobby Servis, Dayton, O., tri-state junior sensation, Tuesday got nearest with a 74 and seemed well satisfied. The practice assaults on par yesterday found Guy Moreland, Dallas, and Chandler Egan, Delmonte, Cal., leading the crew.

Good Prices on Final Card at Hastings Park; Fair Allan Is Repeater

Vancouver, Sept. 7.—Primrose Day upset the dope in the sixth race on yesterday's programme, at Hastings Park, coming from behind to defeat Maryland in the stretch in a thrilling duel.

The Midlothian sprinter was almost entirely overlooked in the pari-mutuels and paid better than 15 to 1 for a 92 tick.

Fair Allan, a superior mudder, which won in a canter the other day, came right back yesterday to repeat in the first race.

Yesterday closed the 1933 racing season on the mainland. Starting Saturday at the Willows, Victoria, the horses will wind up the British Columbia season with a seven-day meet.

Bonnie Miller and Frances Herron in Semi-finals of U.S. Girls' Tourney

Philadelphia, Sept. 7.—Dominating play through three rounds of the girls' national tennis title tourney, the seeded list—one easterner, a midwest entrant and two from the Pacific Coast—brushed aside opponents yesterday and entered the semi-final round.

The Pacific Coast's representation, predominant in the seedings, continued intact into the semi-finals, Bonnie Miller and Frances Herron, top and fourth ranked in the tourney, taking their quarter final matches with little difficulty.

Going into the next round to the last bracket, with them were Millicent Hirsch, New York, seeded second and rated the fifth best player in the nation, and Elizabeth Keating, St. Paul, Minn., ranked third.

Miss Miller defeated Helen Jones, Swampscott, Mass., 6-2, 5-0. Miss Hirsch won from Frances Brancroft, Wilmington, Del., 6-1, 6-4. Miss Herron defeated Patty Kilmartin, Miami Beach, 6-1, 6-1.

With Nanaimo City a certainty for the new league, the Coast League, First Division, is left with only three clubs, namely, St. Andrews, St. Saviours and Westminster Royals, while they will be unable to obtain the use of Condon Park. All the Coast League Second Division clubs have left that organization, Renfrew Argyle being members of the new league. Mrs. Moody Must Not Touch Her Racquet For Six Months

San Francisco, Sept. 7.—Helen Willis Moody, dethroned tennis queen, must not touch a racquet for at least six months, her father, Dr. C. A. Willis, has decreed. Dr. Willis said he hopes Mrs. Moody will be able to compete in the United States tournament next year.

He said the injury which caused Mrs. Moody to default to Helen Wills in the 1928 Wimbledon final, was a strain of the lumbar vertebrae and the sacrum.

Her condition was described by her father as due to pressure on a sciatic nerve between the fifth lumbar vertebrae and the sacrum.

Victoria Golfers Do Well At Jasper

Jack Matson, Mrs. Sayward-Wilson and Mrs. B. R. Philbrick All Advance

In Quarter-finals of Totem Pole Play To-day Matson Opposes Vancouverite

Jasper Park Lodge, Sept. 7.—The colors of Victoria were carried one stage farther in the Totem Pole golf-championship here yesterday, when Jack Matson, southpaw, disposed of Carl Hovens, Seattle, and reached the eighth. His fellow citizen, J. W. Huggles, fell by the wayside to R. L. Cliff, Vancouver, and upon Matson's stout shoulders rests the responsibility of carrying the famed Totem Pole Trophy to Victoria.

Matson played steady golf throughout the match to end it on the fourteenth green.

In the same half of the draw, Starkey, Edmonton, beat a fellow townsman, E. E. Wood, and McKenzie, Saskatoon, beat Carmichael, Winnipeg. Owing to the vagaries of the draw, two Seattle men and two Calgary men will meet for the right to enter the semi-final at the top. Thomas Green, medalist, of Seattle, disposed of Mac O'Neil, Vancouver, and Charlie Adams, Seattle, defeated Walter MacDonald, Winnipeg. This brought Green and Adams together to-day. Lionel Morrison, Alberta's open champion, walked out on E. N. Kennedy, Edmonton, handily, and Leslie Bell, former champion, beat Dr. Digby Wheeler, Winnipeg. This brought the two Californians, Bell and Morrison, together.

In the first flight, Dr. Brydon-Jack, Vancouver, advanced, when Desmond Barrett, Victoria, defaulted. F. Sayward-Wilson, defeated S. Mathews, Seattle. Bill Pigott, Seattle, defeated S. A. Maddocks, Edmonton. Dr. Appleby, Vancouver, lost to Shallicross, New York. Dr. Colin Graham, Vancouver, defeated Dr. G. Hall, Victoria.

In the second flight, Dr. Bricker, Vancouver, defeated A. G. Baker, Winnipeg. W. L. Graham, Vancouver, defeated G. W. Johnson, Seattle. Archer Poole, Calgary, defeated S. C. Sweeney, Vancouver. R. Squire defeated H. Robertson, both of Vancouver.

In the third flight, Hamilton, Vancouver, defeated R. McLeod, Winnipeg. E. M. Johnston, Saskatoon, defeated A. P. Foster, Vancouver. Leigh Walsh, Calgary, defeated H. H. Huggles, Edmonton. J. W. Huggles, Edmonton, lost to J. W. Huggles, Edmonton. J. W. Huggles, Edmonton, lost to J. W. Huggles, Edmonton.

WOMEN'S PLAY

In the women's matches some close games were played and the standing shows Victoria with two places. Mrs. Sayward-Wilson and Mrs. B. R. Philbrick, Winnipeg has two places with Mrs. McLeod and Mrs. Gordon Konanitz. The other four places were occupied by Vancouver players, Mrs. S. C. Sweeney, Miss K. Duff Stuart, Mrs. George Irvine and Mrs. J. Hamilton.

Mrs. May, Edmonton, gave Mrs. Sayward-Wilson a stiff battle before Mrs. Sweeney eliminated Miss Fitzgerald. Mrs. Sweeney, on the sixteenth, defeated Mrs. Hamilton. Mrs. Philbrick defeated Mrs. Walker, Vancouver.

WEDNESDAY FOOTBALL

To the Sports Editor.—I noticed in yesterday evening's issue of The Times that the Wednesday Football League will open its season on September 27. By all appearances it seems to me this league is again going to play out of season. If I am correct, and I believe I am, then it proves to all that this league is not in the least interested in putting soccer in this city upon a high pedestal, which is at present contemplated. Recently public meetings were held, with a view of putting soccer on a strong footing, and I fully believe all that attended were anxious for authorized soccer. Since those meetings were held, the Coast League officials in Victoria and the Lower Island Football Association have met, and it must be said, that harmony exists between these two bodies, who are anxious to give the best possible football this coming season. If being left in the position to do so. But I personally would have liked the Wednesday League also to have taken the stand for authorized soccer. The team managers have declared their intentions of having the league as outlaw, then I fully believe it is up to the players, to declare whether they wish outlaw or authorized soccer. The latter is the one for all, and I believe all players desire it. There are some very fine fellows in the Wednesday League as officials, managers and players, and it makes me wonder why they are going to again have outlaw soccer, if such is the case. In conclusion I hope this letter will be the means of the Wednesday League officials getting together before their season opens and deciding in favor of authorized football.

Gehrig's slugging left him with an average of .321, one point more than Simmons. Hefey, with a gain of five points, boosted his average to .327.

How Can Overworked Father Force Lazy Sons to Milk Cow?—Reader Suggests Conciliatory Board to Stop Divorce

DEAR MISS DIX—What can you do with boys whom you can neither lead nor drive? I have two sons, sixteen, and eighteen years of age, and a cow, and I can neither persuade nor force them to milk her. We need the milk. We cannot afford to have anyone do the milking. I have but one good arm and work hard. Get up and get breakfast while the boys sleep, yet besides I have to do this task. What can you do with such boys?

Answer—Not much, I am afraid, unless you fall back on the good old biblical doctrine: "He that will not labor neither shall he eat." Possibly if you deleted the boys' milk that they won't milk from their porridge of a morning or made their breakfast contingent on their milking it, they might be more willing to establish cordial relations with old Bosy.

Or else, since they seem to have an anti-milking complex, why don't you tell them if they don't milk themselves they must hire somebody else to do the milking? They might prefer to sell papers or cut grass or run errands for the grocer or whatnot to performing upon the cow.

Of course, it is outrageous that two nearly grown boys should be too lazy to perform such a simple domestic task and that they should have so little sense of their responsibility toward the family as not to be willing to do their part of the work that is necessary to keep the household machinery going. They should be glad to put their strong young shoulders under the load and help lift some of the burden from you and their mother.

But don't despair of them. Don't conclude that because they are not willing to do any domestic labor, they are inevitably destined to be loafers and parasites. Adolescence is never quite so bad and hopeless as it seems at the time to be. And for some unknown reason girls and boys have a peculiar aversion to doing chores in their own homes, or rather their parents' homes, for when they get homes of their own they get busy as bees and delight in doing the very things that their mothers and fathers exhausted themselves in trying to get them to do.

So, if your boys would rather do without milk than milk the cow, you had better sell her. Don't let her become a bone of contention between you and your sons. Better no milk at all than to have the milk of human kindness turn to clabber through daily spats over it.

But, after all, if your boys are not willing to do their share of the household tasks and if they are willing to sit around idle and see you and their mother do the work, the fault is yours because you did not teach them to be helpful when they were little. You spoiled them by doing all the work and letting them loaf, and now you resent the very habits that you bred in them.

It is all in the way you bring up a child, and if children are not helpful it is the parents' fault.

DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I believe that the best way to stop divorce would be to appoint a conciliatory board of six members, three men and three women not under the age of sixty. Before any action could be taken the complainant would have to appear in person without any representation and lay his or her grievance before the board. I venture that after hearing the advice that these grandmothers and grandfathers would give, it would not be necessary to call in a lawyer and many a home would be kept intact.

A. N.

Answer—Good idea. Age does not always bring wisdom about everything, but it certainly does in marriage. For in looking back over their own experience the thing that every old man and woman realizes most is how many mountains they made out of mole hills in marriage. How many little faults they magnified into unforgivable offenses. How much stress they put on the trifles that really amounted to nothing. How much they worried themselves over suspicions and fears and jealousies that were just so much borrowed trouble.

The tears one shed, the heartaches one endured, because John hired a pretty stenographer or sat out a dance with a ravishing blonde—what a tempest in a teapot it seems after twenty years and how silly of one to have let it disturb one's peace of mind! The bitter quarrels one had over Mary's new hat and because she could never learn to pare the potatoes as thinly as mother did—how idiotic it is, looking back upon it, and how assinine to have let it come between you and her.

It is because old people remember their own follies that would make their advice valuable to the young in marriage, and there is no old man or old woman who wouldn't tell a disgruntled married couple that "sweetness isn't a panacea for their disappointment in marriage's not being a fairy tale. It won't give them back their lost illusions nor put them back where they were before marriage and make them light-hearted boys and girls again, for between them lies a broken home and little children crying for a lost father or mother.

There are mighty few cases in which grandmothers and grandfathers wouldn't tell young Darby and Joan to kiss and make up. And a lot of them would do it.

Uncle Ray's Corner

Lore of Precious Gems

RUBIES AND SAPPHIRES
Red rubies and blue sapphires come from the mineral known as "corundum." Next to the diamond they are the hardest of all stones.

Besides the true rubies, there are red stones which sometimes pass for rubies but which are taken from the mineral known as "spinel." They are not so valuable. Imitation rubies are made by man, and their value is not great.

The finest sapphires are found in the island of Ceylon, in Kashmir, and in Burma, Siam, Madagascar, New South Wales (Australia), North Carolina and Montana are among the other places where these corundum stones occur.

A large sapphire is not worth so much as a large ruby. A sapphire of 100 carats was sold for $30,000. That is a goodly sum, but a ruby of the same size would be valued at hundreds of thousands of dollars.

When we speak of value, let us remember that the word has more than one meaning. It may mean "market price" or it may mean "value to us." For my part, no gem could ever mean so much as true friendship.

A young reader of the Corner once remarked that the "gem of knowledge" is more important than any jewel which can be used for adornment (For "General Interest" section of your scrapbook).

Corundum is found in other colors—yellow, purple and green—and each color provides a gem of value, but the red rubies and the blue sapphires are most prized of all the gems in the corundum family.

The ruby, in fact, may be placed above the diamond in value when we compare stones of large and equal size. A one-carat ruby may be worth no more than a one-carat diamond; but a five-carat or ten-carat ruby is worth several times as much as a diamond of the same size. That is because large rubies are more rare than large diamonds.

Burma is a land of famous rubies. Two Burma rubies were sent to London in 1875. One was 32 carats and sold for $48,500. The other, of 38½ carats, brought $97,200.

The Russian empress, Catharine, obtained a ruby as large as the egg of a pigeon, and we are told that the Great Mogul of Delhi, India, sat on a throne which was adorned with 108 rubies, the smallest of which was of 100 carats.

Mario Polo declares that the King of Ceylon owned a ruby "as thick as a man's arm."

Rubies are found amid layers of limestone and in river beds. The finest
